Unit 5 Outdoor Fun

Reading 1

Read the poem.

When the sky is blue and bright,
I like to go to the beach!
I flap my wings and look for a bite.
I hope I find a peach!

5 I walk along the sand,
Children build sandcastles with a bucket.
Nobody has food in their hand,
Or in their pocket.

10 Some children look at shells,
Some play with a beach ball.
A mother yells,
'Be careful! Don't trip and fall!'

15 As the sun gets hotter,
The people go swimming.
They splash in the water,
But I want to start eating.

I see with my little eye,
A family is having a picnic!
Sandwiches, chips and apple pie,
20 What should I pick?

Finally! I grab a potato chip,
But the strong wind blows.
My chip is going to slip,
Oh no! Down it goes!

Predict what happens next

Predicting means guessing what will happen next when we read a text. It helps us think more about the text and understand it better. To make predictions, we need to understand what is happening now and use what we already know to guess what might happen next.

Try this!

Read the poem on p. 30 again. Can you predict what will happen next?

Step

1

Understand what is happening in the text.

- The speaker is hungry.
- It is looking for food at the beach.
- It takes a potato chip, but loses it.

Step

2

Use what you know from your own experiences.

- Do you watch birds at the beach?
- Think about other stories or texts you read.
- Does something similar happen?

Step

3

Ask questions.

What do you think the speaker will do next? Why?

Fill in the blank.

What do you think the speaker will do next?

I think it will look for more _____ .
